SCHOOL TRACK MEET REVEALS SOME PROMISING MATERIAL TO DEVELOP

(From the Viking News)

The first inter-scholastic track meet held under auspices of Wainwright-Viking A.T.A. on Sat., Oct. 3, was a decided success. Favored by good weather conditions, and a large attendance from both town and rural schools, the meet brought out hundreds of spectators and contestants.

The local fair grounds were well situated for the events and preparations were well in hand when the meet opened. Every event was run off practically according to schedule. Three town schools and 16 rural schools were entered. The committee felt that this was a gratifying show of enthusiasm but hope to see more rural schools entered next year.

Many close and interesting events were pulled off and the contests revealed some very excellent material in the various events. One event that kept the crowd keyed up was the pole vault where Angus McDonald, of Viking, and A. Bateman, of Wainwright, 4' 8".

Kitty Taylor, of Viking, in the junior grade events, won seven firsts in her class and is deserving of most honorable mention.

Viking schools won the cup for the most points for town schools, while Melbrae rural school in Irma district won the cup for rural schools. Irma schools came second in points for the town schools.

The visiting schools wish to thank the Viking teachers for their hospitality and for the cocoa served free to outside schools.

We are going to ask our sports scribe, Herb, to analyze and scrutinize the winners' list and make some observations in our next issue as to how to develop some of the athletes that showed such outstanding talent at the meet.

Following is an official list of winners in each event, compiled by Miss M. Wittmann of Wainwright, for our readers.

Pools and the Marketing of Grain

The country elevators use the present marketing system because experience and numerous investigations have proved it to be the best and cheapest way of handling and marketing Canada's wheat.

The Western Pools, who are members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, state that they use its facilities because they have no other alternative. They have other alternatives. They could:

- Sell direct to Canadian exporters;
- Sell direct to overseas millers;
- Sell direct to overseas importers;
- Establish their own Pool Exchange.

They do none of these things, because they know that the open market, of all systems tried to date, affords the farmer the best price and the best protection. In other words, they use their memberships in the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in the same manner as the other country elevator companies use theirs, and for exactly the same reasons.

It may be that some better system can and will be evolved by conference, investigation or experiment. If any other system of marketing which will prove of greater benefit to the farmer can be evolved, it will receive its earliest and strongest support from the elevator companies whose pride it is to have been in the vanguard of service to the farmers of the West for more than thirty years.

Assistance Needed

While it is a matter of congratulation that Churchill, the Hudson's Bay port, is enjoying a record shipping season this year, it is passing strange that active steps to promote increased traffic for the route, for the establishment of which the west fought for over 50 years, should be left to "outsiders."

For better than half a century, farmers and business men of the prairie provinces fought against great odds to establish the Hudson Bay route by the construction of a railway line, and terminal facilities on the Bay to handle traffic which they hoped would eventually result in better returns for agricultural products shipped out and reduced prices for merchandise shipped in.

The first objective was achieved in 1932 when the S.S. Pennyworth steamed into Churchill Harbor with a cargo of commodities from overseas for Western Canadian consumption and left again with a full cargo of Western Canadian grain for European markets. Since that time there has been an annual increase in the number of inward and outward bound vessels making use of the route until this year, 14 boats have entered the harbor with a possibility that the number would be increased to 16 before the close of navigation.

While, however, these results indicate some progress in the development of traffic by the short and direct route between Western Canada and Europe, the development is not rapid enough to ensure the full benefits which prairie producers and consumers should be reaping from the operation of this great project. If the route is to be of maximum service and benefit to the west, the people of the west, for whose advantage these facilities were devised, must take active steps to promote the use of the service to its greatest possible extent and as speedily as conditions permit.

Recently two notable and interested authorities testified, almost on the same day, that this is not being done; that the people of the prairies are not taking as much interest as they should in speeding up traffic and that, in effect, they are apathetic.

Said R. S. Dalgleish of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, chairman of the Board of the Dalgleish Shipping Line, which company has operated more boats in and out of Churchill since the inception of the route than any other organization, in an interview: "I do not think that Canada has done enough to develop Churchill and the Hudson Bay route," and added that instead of 14 ships entering Churchill Harbor this season there should have been sixty.

The other authority who expressed similar views was A. L. Lawes, vice-president of the Montreal Shipping Company, who, in an interview after a visit to Churchill, was critical of the apathy "in many places" concerning the development of the northern seaport.

Coming from the sources they do, these comments indicate that these facilities are capable of providing much greater service to the people of the prairie provinces than they are now doing, provided the people most vitally interested in the development of the route take the necessary steps to ensure the maximum use of them.

As is intimated by another authority, the greatest possible benefits in the way of reduced costs can only be secured by a big volume of business. This is axiomatic to practically all commercial undertakings.

Mr. Lawes told the press that the French Louis Dreyfus and Co. line was shipping out five million bushels of wheat this season through the Bay channel and said that ten million bushels was a reasonable objective for 1937, but he gave a specific indication of loss of traffic as a result of failure to furnish commodities which could have been handled had they been available.

He reported that the Montreal Shipping Company has ordered the steamship "Brandon" fitted out to handle livestock. "However," he added, "arrangements were not begun in time and no cattle were available for, the dates on which the ship could come to the port."

It is true that the On-to-the-Bay Association has done much to promote the development of trade via the Hudson Bay route since the railway line and terminal facilities were completed by aiding successful efforts to secure reduced carrying charges and insurance rates as well as extension of the navigation season, but the efforts must be aided and abetted to the greatest possible extent by government agencies, business concerns, farmer organizations and individuals, if the most is to be made of the new route.

The Hudson Bay route, like Topsy, must not be allowed to just grow haphazardly, but its development must be accelerated by vigorous effort and alert salesmanship on the part of all citizens of the prairie provinces.

Latest Surgical Discovery

Tests Will Show Susceptibility To Shock In Operations

A corner at least of the always dangerous curtain of unconsciousness that hides surgical and post-operative shock was lifted by a physician at the American Congress on Physical Therapy. He revealed for the first time that tests could be conducted which tended to prevent prospective death in cases other than emergencies.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, chairman of the committee of preventive medicine of the New York County Medical Society, discovered that persons whose vasotone efficiency (condition of the blood vessels) was dangerously low nearly always experienced marked decrease in blood pressure when made to stand, and a simultaneous and extreme quickening of the pulse.

Dr. Crampton told the medical men that with charts he had worked out over a long period of years surgeons could tell with the simple tests whether a patient about to be operated upon would develop shock.

"When the readings are low, but immediate surgery is imperative, the surgeon must expect trouble, employ speed, spare trauma and select less severe operative procedure."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest, your stomach is upset, you feel tired, your stomach is bloated, you feel nervous, you feel sluggish, you feel out of sorts, you feel like a zombie.

A new bowel movement doesn't always get the case. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up. It's harmless and gentle. They make the bile flow freely. They do the work of a catalyst but have no catalyst or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Don't buy any other kind.

Raw Asbestos Found

Deposits Discovered Near New Gold Fields in Ontario

Deposits of raw asbestos have been found north and south of the gold fields recently discovered 11 miles north of Arden, Ont., it was learned.

This tiny village of 350 population, continued to attract mining men and prospectors from widely separated sections of Canada and the United States as all reports tended to confirm the optimistic expressions of local residents as to the richness of the new gold fields. The gold vein runs ten miles east and west straight through the bush country, and extends about three and one-half miles in width, according to experts.

Staking of claims continued over a wide area adjoining the actual vein, first discovered last June by T. J. Alexander and Mervin Newton, local men. They have sold their claims to Hollinger mines. They reportedly received $75,000. Hollinger engineers also have secured much additional property in the district. Representatives of all other leading Canadian mining companies are on the ground taking up options and buying outright from prospectors willing to sell.

Oil Made Good Light

Natives Of Hawaii Used Nuts From Kuku Tree

Lumbar or kukui oil, obtained from the nuts of the kukui, or candle nut, tree, are occasionally used in the manufacture of some kinds of paint. The candle nut tree is native to Polynesia and is widely cultivated in Asia, Hawaii and the Philippines. Formerly the Hawaiians strung the nuts together on sticks and used them for lighting their houses. Hence the name "candle nut."

In the United States and Canada folks consume approximately seven grapefruit to every 100 oranges.

Canada's New Coinage

Reported That New Designs Will Appear On Different Denominations

When Canada's new coinage is issued, one of the coins may gladden the eye of western Canadians. It may bear on the reverse side a grain elevator or a similar prairie scene.

Big changes are being planned in the new coins, which will bear the head of King Edward and which are expected to be issued in 1937.

The head of the king, of course, will be upon one side of the coin and will face to the left. But designs for the reverse side are still under consideration and suggestions are being narrowed down.

The idea is to abandon the traditional wreath of maple leaves and provide a new and different design for each one of the 1, 5, 10- and 25-cent coins.

As a concession to sectional claims and to emphasize the resources and interests in Canada, the designs under consideration are of a wide variety.

One coin will likely show a fishing schooner—the famous Bluenose—another a peak in the Rockies, a third a fish or game subject, and a fourth a grain elevator or some prairie topic.

There is some talk that the 50-cent coin—always an unpopular one—may be discontinued.

The suggested designs will follow that seen upon the recent $1 silver coin, which bears a canoe paddled by an Indian and a voyageur.

Canadian topics have been pictured on Canadian stamps—such as the Bluenose, the peak of the Rockies, a prairie scene of harvesting and others.

War Not Glorified

Is A Cruel And Wasteful Thing, Says Lord Tweedsmuir

Disabled returned soldiers know that war is "a cruel and wasteful thing," Baron Tweedsmuir, Canada's governor-general, told the Amputations Association of the Great War, in annual convention at Winnipeg.

In a brief address, His Excellency said men who had lost a limb or an eye "may be perfectly happy and comfortable physically, yet this reminder of the war they must always have with them."

"Such men know," he continued, "that war is not essentially a noble, or heroic, or beautiful thing, but that it is a cruel and wasteful thing. So it is they who say to themselves, 'Please God, it shall not come again.' Thus, the amputations men are in a position to inspire real public feeling about the war."

The governor-general was made a member of the association. In pinning his identification badge upon him, Rev. Captain S. E. Lambert, association president, addressed the governor-general as "Comrade Lord Tweedsmuir."

A resolution adopted by the delegates declared civil servants who served in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and who have not already had such service computed as civil service time for superannuation purposes, should be credited with their military service period as civil service.

Bald headed men may be interested to know that the common fly has color preferences. It dislikes green and red, cannot endure primrose tint, and prefers orange and white. Primrose pattern should be fashionable during the fly season.

Peaceful China

The main stabilizing factor of Asia, in the opinion of Henry L. Stimson, former United States secretary of state, is the "essentially peaceful character" of China.

The leopard is practically the only foe the gorilla fears. The latter sleeps at the foot of a tree to guard his family against this solitary enemy.

After Ten-Year Blindness

Young Man Gets Real Thrill When Sight Comes Back

After ten years of total blindness, Roy K. Kendrick of Bondi, Australia, suddenly recovered his sight while shaving.

Kendrick was blinded in a soccer match in 1926 when he was 22 years old and had reconciled himself to the doctors' verdict that he would never see again.

"When I was shaving," he said, "I felt a strange sensation in my eyes. I thought I could see my face in the mirror, but imagination has played some strange tricks on me in the last few years. I rushed out of my room and saw the sky—blue, with white clouds."

"Then I went back to finish my shaving. I dressed by touch in the way I have learned, and then went out into the street. It was all vague, but what I felt could not be described. Buildings I remember having passed several times. I could see them—and women dressed very differently from ten years ago. I kept noticing things and reading advertisements—anything. Then I ran back to the hotel, overjoyed, laughing, crying and kissing everyone. I couldn't help it. It was difficult to focus at first, but I am getting used to my eyes again. When I want anything, my first impulse is to reach out to touch it rather than look."

If Motor License Exchange In Empire Was Established

A resolution seeking the co-operation of the Automobile Association and the Royal Automobile Club of Great Britain and the allied automobile clubs of the sister Dominions, in a concerted campaign for the establishment of motor license exchange throughout the British Empire, was unanimously passed at the 23rd annual general meeting of the Canadian Automobile Association at the National Club in Toronto.

It was asserted that the governmental red tape and customs barriers to intra-empire motor touring greatly exceed those relating to travel between Canada and the United States.

Have More Patience

Really Artistic Pictures Are Usually Taken By Amateurs

Amateur photographers produce more artistic photographs than the professionals, says Alex J. Krupy, who was chairman of the committee in charge of the seventh international salon of photography held in Chicago.

"The reason," Krupy said, "is that after spending hours daily on commercial work, the professional has not the patience of an amateur and cannot prevent a certain amount of commercialism entering the picture."

Solves Problem Of Growers

X-Ray Used To Determine Quality Of Vegetables

One of Minnesota's vegetable growers' greatest problems—that of ascertaining the quality of their products—has been solved by a University of Minnesota plant physiologist.

R. B. Harvey, of the university farm, has perfected a method by which he can peer into the heart of potatoes and other agricultural products.

Employing the use of an X-ray and a physician's fluoroscope, Harvey can detect those vegetables with hollow hearts and thus rate accurately products by testing samples in large quantities.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —
GEORGIA CRAIG

Advance notices had been plentiful and alluring about the event at which "Play-Girl" was to make her debut, take off her mask, as it were, and face the world she had flouted. She had been living in New York for some time, the newspapers discovered—with the help of Michael Fairbourne in charge of the Tarrance Publishing Company's publicity department—and because she had become the most-talked-of, and up to then, retiring, of all anonymous celebrities, it was fitting that she should come out of that retirement with a flourish of publicity trumpets.

Everybody was curious about "Play-Girl." Some insisted that she would be discovered to be some sex-starved and disappointed old maid who had soothed her repressions through the imagery of her book. Others voted for a blase divorcee—several were openly mentioned—while still others insisted there was no "Play-Girl" at all (they got it from authentic sources, of course) but that the whole book was a symposium of collected experiences which had been ghosted by the firm's own Beatrice Fairfax who was, they were assured, fat and well past fifty with several quite up and coming granddaughters. It was hard for anyone to believe that there really existed in the flesh any young and beautiful woman who could have sinned as violently as "Play-Girl" and then cold-bloodedly and analytically have written about her experiences, playing with them with the same skill that a surgeon exhibits in wielding a scalpel.

At all events, it was inevitable that everyone wanted to be among the first to see "Play-Girl" when the Tarrance Company introduced her to an eagerly awaiting public.

On the night of Starr's debut, therefore, the grand ball room at Pierre's was crowded. Everybody, who was anybody socially, and modern enough to be seen where "Play-Girl" was seen, was there. Hol polio would get their chances later, and have an opportunity to chase after her when she went to theatres and night clubs, pressing upon her her autograph books as though she were a movie celebrity. In fact, before "Play-Girl" made her appearance, she was more exploited than any cinema star, for while they only portrayed the emotions of stories, "Play-Girl" had lived hers. And still lived to tell the story.

With all the fanfare preceding her, Starr made a poised, effective entrance the night of her debut, descending the steps from the balcony to the ballroom, scarlet-tipped fingers resting lightly on the arm of Michael Fairbourne.

Her gown was a seductive sheath of clinging black chiffon velvet, daintily cut, a startling foil for the misty pallor of her face. She had been sitting on one of her low chairs beside an inlaid table when Michael had come for her and he had stared. Starr recalled how he had shaded his eyes, looking at her, surveying her from her cloud of black hair to the table edge. She had asked him, at the surprised look in his eyes:

"D-don't you like my frock?"

And Michael: "I was just looking for it."

It was that kind of debut frock, a daring modiste's triumph.

Her face, with the camelia skin, was as perfect as a cameo carved out of ivory. Her mouth was a painted, scarlet smile. The long black eyes—so perfect to carry out all those stories about her royal Egyptian ancestry—were as deeply mysterious as those of any pictured priestess. And a soft mass of unrestrained, cloudy black curls added an oddly naive note to a picture of worldly sophistication. The one touch of color was the enameled necklace and bracelet which at a glance appeared of fabulous worth as antiquities.

That was how Starr Ellison looked on the occasion of her debut into the glittering night life of New York, highly social, or otherwise. Starr Ellison, the infamous "Play-Girl!"

A long murmur of interest that almost held a touch of awe greeted the arrival of the astonishingly lovely young woman who had at last cast off her anonymity in a sensational burst of publicity. It broke immediately into little individual murmurs.

From the men:

"Gorgeous!"

"I'd like to meet her!"

"I've got to meet her! No long distance whorshipping for me!"

"Snappy number, eh, what?"

"If there's a good Egyptian sample, no wonder old Marc Antony went haywire!"

From the women:

"Brazen hussy!"

"You wouldn't think she'd dare to come here or any place else with that reputation she's got!"

"As if it isn't had enough to have lived the kind of life she's lived without writing her experiences for everybody to read!"

"I can well believe that about her Egyptian blood. They've always been decadent, I've read!"

"And they say that terrible book has made her a fortune, my dear!"

It was quite natural that some of the remarks should reach the girl on the steps, but she betrayed no embarrassment. Black eyes beneath unbelievable long, dusky lashes swept the ballroom with a glance of contemptuous mockery, with an odd, disdainful aloofness with which some long-gone princess might have looked on her slaves.

Her painted smile never wavered. She turned and whispered to the man at her side something which her audience took to be one of the sarcastic witticisms of the variety with which her book was spiced:

What Starr Ellison actually said was:

"Michael-Hassan, I'm scared! My legs feel wobbly. I don't think I can walk a step farther."

Warm gray eyes reassured her. Michael patted her hand. Scared little airmen with the heart of a child. He hadn't thought of it in that light before. . . . Didn't know the thought had been coming to him by degrees during their intimacy of the preparation days. He had been preferring to remember where he had found her—Rot, all of it! She had been a La Luna habitue. . . . "Nough said."

He whispered tensely:

"Keep your courage, kid. You're doing great. Cleopatra herself couldn't have knocked them any deader!" Then his eyes narrowed as he shot her a quick glance. "And for the love of mud, don't call me Hassan! . . . Some of them might not understand that."

Starr's long eyes passed over him slowly.

"I understand, Has—Michael. Don't let it worry you. Everybody will understand that your interest in 'Play-Girl' is because you're so loyal to the interests of your firm."

Michael flushed at the unexpected rebuff, but said nothing. Perhaps he had made a mistake in assuming with the girl an air of camaraderie. After all, there was a most meticulous business arrangement.

In short order Starr was introduced ed to more people than she could ever hope to remember. It was bewildering. She was conscious all the time, too, of an undercurrent of antagonism, disapproval in too many cases. She knew she was being measured by her reputation. The kiss-and-tell girl.

Men ogled her, drinking in her fragile loveliness. Some of them managed to inject an undertone of suggestiveness beneath their most casual remarks.

Starr understood. They were wondering how far they could go; they were trying her out. They were fancying themselves in the role of this famous beauty's newest play partner. She, who had never had a love affair in her life, could have taken her pick of twenty lovers that night had she chosen to offer the slightest encouragement.

The women were on their guard; conversation stilted, eyes on their men, as though mortally afraid that their own husbands or sweethearts would be "Play-Girl's" next game.

It was strange, this being the centre of attraction. It was a strange undertaking upon which she had embarked. Starr was most uncertain in her own mind whether this kind of "playing" was a game worth the candle of luxurious living. For six months. But she had to go on. Must! Starr felt a hand draw her from out a circle of curious admirers and turned to face Michael. And a girl. In the girl's eyes was that touch of interest that is usually in the eyes of a juvenile scientist with a butterfly on a pin. The girl smiled oddly and slowly.

"So you are 'Play-Girl'?" she drawled. "Well, I am certainly interested to meet you!"

Starr heard Michael murmuring the name of Stephanie Dale in the moment she noticed that Stephanie substituted "interested" for the conventional "pleased." There was an unpleasant infection in the imperious voice; further unpleasantness in her haughty mien.

She made her remark much in the manner she might have said, "How interesting!" viewing the freaks in a sidelong through a jeweled lunette.

The girl Michael wanted to marry was a slim, pink and white blond. Her eyes were, as brilliantly blue as sapphires, and as cold. She wore all white, and looked like a pale house flower against Starr's vivid coloring.

Starr felt a vague quickening of her pulses. Of all the people she had met this night, Stephanie Dale was the first to register indelibly in her consciousness.

Duplicates Of Crown Jewels

London Firm Busy Filling Orders For Coronation Display

The "crown jewels" of England are coming to America—in cargo lots.

In fact, if the United States should decide to enshrine a king any time within the next few months there will be enough glittering crowns on hand to outfit a whole royal family.

With King Edward VIII's coronation set for next May, a London firm is busily turning out duplicates of the famous British crown jewels.

Scores of orders have come from American cities for display in connection with next year's coronation ceremonies, while dozens of others have come from Australia, New Zealand, Canada and South Africa.

Except that the "gems" are glass and the "gold" is imitation, the crowns are identical with the historical jewels which are kept under heavy guard in the Tower of London.

Each set contains five crowns, five stoles, six scepters, two orbs, the spurs and bracelets of St. George, and other regal paraphernalia including the famed Order of the Garter.

Fuel Tanks In Wings

New Soviet Plane Makes Maiden Non-Stop Flight

An aeroplane which may revolutionize aircraft design has made a successful 5,858-mile non-stop maiden flight in Soviet Russia. The machine is known as the ANT-25. It has been perfected by Professor A. N. Tupolev.

The machine is a monoplane with fuel tanks in the wings. Special balloons of light rubberized fabric take the place of floats to enable the machine to land on water.

These balloons are connected by a common feed so that the pilot can, by pressing with his foot, inflate the balloons and fill all of them.

In the event of a forced landing on water, this balloon system, it is claimed, would enable the aeroplane to stay afloat for a considerable period. The machine is also the first Soviet aeroplane to be equipped with an electrically operated retractable undercarriage fitted with an oil shock absorber.

Wallace H. McMillan, of Winnipeg, holds the distinction of winning six tyee buttons in one fishing expedition at Courtenay, B.C. Find Precious Stones

Claim Made That Diamonds And Rubies Can Be Mined In Edmonton Area

Diamonds and rubies can be mined within Edmonton's city limits. This is the belief of Ferdinand Pomahac, a contractor who claims to have found rough crystals he believes stones.

Mr. Pomahac, who has visited diamond fields in South Africa, said the crystals would cut glass in the same manner as a diamond. He displayed a stone which he contends is a genuine ruby and so appraised by an Edmonton jeweler.

Location of the find is withheld by the "city prospector" who declares he has a valuable find. He intends to acquire rights to the property and develop the field.

Pomahac made a study of geology in Germany and is convinced he will produce diamonds and rubies in commercial quantity. Part of any financial benefits accruing from the venture will be used to care for sick children in Edmonton hospitals, he says.

Taking No Chances

Bookings Being Made On Sister Ship To The Queen Mary

"No. 552" sister-ship to the Queen Mary may be full up for the maiden voyage before her keel is laid in December.

Scores of her blue-print bedrooms and bathrooms are already booked.

Plans in the Cunard-White Star offices show reservations on the non-existent liner, which will not sail until 1940.

Most of the bookings are from people who made frantic last-minute efforts to secure accommodation, at any price, aboard the Queen Mary.

A Cunard-White Star official said to the London Star: "About 50 reservations have already been made, and we are constantly getting inquiries."

"Some people want to know if they can safely wait a year or two before they book."

"The first bookings were made immediately it was announced that the government had sanctioned the proposal to lay the keel, and they were all by people who had missed the Queen Mary's sailing."

Little Helps For This Week

The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms. Deut. 33:27.

Within Thy encircling arms we lie, O God, in Thy infinity: Our souls in quiet shall abide, Beset with love on every side.

"The Everlasting Arms." We think of that whenever rest is sweet. How the whole earth and the strength of it is beneath every tired creature to give it rest, holding us always. No human tenderness or patience is greater than that which gathers in its arms a little child and holds it, heedless of weariness. And He sits with the great earth, and all upon it, with this unseparable force of His love that never forgets or exhausts itself, so that everywhere we may lie in His bosom and be comforted.

Made In Canada

Dominion Manufactures Some Of World's Finest Inks

Canada is more responsible than any other country in the Empire for the world's split ink. She is the chief producer of carbon black, one of the principal ingredients of printer's ink. The Chinese ascribe the invention of ink to Tien Tcheu, who lived between 2697 B.C. and 2597 B.C. and it is known that the ancient Egyptians prepared and used inks at a very early date. An Egyptian document—a papyrus—with written characters of the date 2500 B.C. is still in existence. Two thousand years later the emperors of Greece and of Rome were wont to sign their decrees with a flourish in purple ink. Since these days the numbers and kinds of ink have been many, and today some of the finest inks in the world are manufactured in Canada.

Country Elevators AND Grain Marketing

Elevator companies, including the Pools, are members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and use it in exactly the same manner and for exactly the same reason. They use it because the futures market is the best method which has been so far devised to protect the farmer and to ensure low handling charges. It is not used by either the Pools or the other elevator companies for the purposes of profit.

The Pooling method, which is the only other method which has been tried to date in Canada, cost the West many millions of dollars. It is no longer seriously advocated, even by those who invented it. If in the future any organization, commission or government can evolve a system of marketing Canada's crop which will consistently return to the farmer even a fraction of a cent more than he obtains through the present methods, the line elevator companies will be the first to endorse and adopt such a system. At the present time all elevator companies (including the Pools) market grain in exactly the same way because it is the best and cheapest way which has been devised.

Fair competition is the farmers' safeguard.

Propaganda by the Pools, through the Western Producer, country newspapers and field meetings, attacking the elevator companies because of marketing methods which the Pools themselves adopt, is untrue and hypocritical and merely designed to abolish the competition which is the farmers' best protection.

A quiet wedding ceremony took place at the United church on Wednesday, Sept. 30, when Rev. Dr. S. Scott, pastor of the church, united in marriage Mr. Herbert Ernest Grimoldy and Miss Orva Kathleen Sowinski, both of Kinsella district. The newlyweds will go to housekeeping on a farm near Diamond Willow school. They are receiving congratulations of a number of far and near relatives in the district who wish them every happiness.

United Church Notes

Services for Sunday, October 11th: Albert, 11 a.m.; Alma Mater, 3 p.m.; Irma, 7:30 p.m. The quarterly Communion service will be held at the close of the evening service in the Irma church. You will be a welcome guest at the fellowship of the Lord's table.

On Sunday, October 18th, Anniversary services will be held in the Irma church, with the Rev. J. P. Berry of Edmonton as special preacher; and on the Monday evening there will be a public meeting with Mr. Berry as the leading speaker, to be followed by a social hour and luncheon. All friends from far and near are urged to come and join in these Anniversary celebrations, and make them the best yet. If only all the folks in the community who have been in association with the Irma church in one way or another, would give this Anniversary their support, it would be a means of wide spread blessing, and would prosper the good work of the church in the coming days. And surely that is not an unreasonable expectation! The church, it can be confidently asserted, meets the supreme needs of any community and the Irma church has a record which is most enlightening, to any who will use their imagination in regard to the following facts taken from the register of Baptisms, Marriages and Funerals. The first recorded baptism was on Sept. 13, 1909, of Annie Gladys Larson, and the officiating minister H. Moffitt Rutledge; since then up to date 179 baptisms have been administered. The contracting parties of the first recorded marriage were Frank Hugh Allen and Florence Turner on Aug. 5, 1910, Rev. F. E. Boothroyd officiating minister, and since then 113 marriage ceremonies have been performed by the ministers of the Irma church. The first funeral record is simply a name, without date or any other particulars, Charles Young; but the first record with complete information is of the infant, Gordon Bruce Barber, on May 10, '11, Rev. F. E. Boothroyd officiating minister; and there have been 182 funeral services in connection with the Irma church since that time. Of course, there are many changes in a community in a period of nearly 30 years, but there are many left to whom the figures quoted above mean something personally. Well, this is just a reminder that the church needs your interest and support; and it is still ready to render you any service in line with her God-given responsibility. The above figures just deal with one side of the church's work, and it is recognized that the most important work of the church is unwritten in any human record. Let these anniversary meetings be a real get-together time, for both old friends and new friends. Remember the dates, Sunday and Monday, October 18 and 19. We are counting on YOU. Don't fail us!
